

AWARDS OF EXCELLENCE

Each year at our Annual Conference, Idaho Rural Water Association presents awards to Member Systems and employees of Member Systems that have done an outstanding job in the water and wastewater field. IRWA also honors Member Systems that have shown initiative and taken a proactive approach in developing a plan or taken steps to implement a plan to protect their drinking water sources from potential contaminants through source water protection efforts.

Please look over the enclosed list of awards to be presented and give some good hard thought to systems and employees that you know would qualify for any of these awards. This is your opportunity to place recognition for outstanding performance and professionalism where it is deserved.

Here is a brief description of the award categories:

Water or Wastewater Operations Specialist: This award recognizes a State of Idaho Certified Water or Wastewater Operator who is actively working in the field with outstanding leadership abilities and accomplishments in the water/wastewater operations.

Rookie of the Year: This award recognizes someone who has recently acquired their operators license in the State of Idaho (water or wastewater) within the last twelve months that does an outstanding job.

Administrative: This award recognizes an administrative employee (Clerk, Superintendent, Manager, etc.) for outstanding performance in office management and procedures.

Humanitarian: This award recognizes someone concerned with the interest and welfare of the public, and is one who possesses traits of compassion for other humans by their acts of kindness. They go above and beyond for their community.

Water or Wastewater System: This award recognizes a system who performs exceptional efforts to properly manage, operate and maintain their system.

Source Water Protection System of the Year: This award recognizes water systems in Idaho that have developed or are implementing source water protection programs.
